HISTORY OF HUDSON CITY.

HUDSON CITY was formed from Claverack, and incorporated as a city April 22, 1785. A part of Stockport was taken off in 1833, and Greenport in 1837.

It lies upon the east bank of the Hudson, at the head of ship navigation, near the center of the west border of the county. The surface is a rolling upland. A slate bluff rises abruptly from the river to the height of sixty feet, and from its summit a beautiful rolling ridge extends eastward and slopes gradually upward for a distance of one and a half miles, terminating in Prospect Hill, a high, rounded eminence three hundred feet above the surrounding lands and five hundred feet above the river. This ridge is from six to fifty rods in width, and is bounded on the north and south by gradual and uniform slopes. North and South Bays (two shallow bodies of water) extend about one thousand feet inland from the river, converting the west extremity of the ridge into a promontory. A public square, containing an area of about one acre and a half, has been laid out upon the summit of the bluff overlooking the river, and furnishing one of the most beautiful public promenades in the country. From the summit of Prospect Hill an extensive view is obtained of the windings of the Hudson, with the distant Catskills on one side, and the green hills of Massachusetts on the other.

In the river, opposite this city, is an extensive mud flat, through which a canal has been cut for the Hudson and Athens Ferry. This canal has recently been abandoned.

This city is the western terminus of the Hudson & Boston Railroad and an important station on the Hudson River Railroad. The manufactures are extensive, consisting principally of iron and clothing. A considerable amount of commerce is carried on by means of the Hudson.

The City Hall is a brick building, situated on Warren street near the center of the city. The lower story is used for mercantile purposes.

The Hudson Academy building, a plain, three story brick edifice near Prospect Hill, was erected in 1805. The Hudson Female Academy was organized in 1851, and occupies a substantial and commodious building at the corner of Warren and First street.

The Orphan Asylum was established in October, 1843, and is in charge of a board of lady managers. Forty to sixty children are provided for. It is supported by private donations, assisted by an annual stipend of $1,000 from the county.

The city contains eleven private schools, two public libraries, three banks, and three newspaper offices. Population 7,831.

A Lunatic Asylum was established here in 1832, but it was given up upon the opening of the State Asylum at Utica. The first religious organization (a Society of Friends) was formed in 1784, and a meeting house was built in 1785. There are now eleven churches in the city: Baptist, Methodist Episcopal, Presbyterian, Protestant Episcopal, Reformed Protestant Dutch, Roman Catholic, Universalist, Wesleyan, Methodist, African Methodist and two Friends, meeting houses.

Hudson was formerly known as Claverack Landing. The foundation of its future prosperity as a city was laid by Seth and Thomas Jenkins and their associates in 1783. It grew with great rapidity, and soon became the center of a very extensive commercial business. In 1775 it became a port of entry, and at an early period its commerce extended to the West Indies and Europe. Shad and herring, from the river and coast fisheries, ship timber, and country produce were exported, and numbers of ships were employed in the whale fisheries. The embargo, and the war which followed, destroyed this trade. The whaling business was afterwards resumed, and for some time prosecuted with success; but it has since been entirely abandoned. A daily line of steamers ply between this city and Albany, and the day line between Albany and New York touches here.

LADIES' EMPORIUM !

MISS H. C. TURNER,

Fashionable Millinery,

AND DRESS MAKING,

DEALER IN

Millinery Goods and Dress Trimmings,

No. 265 WARREN STREET,

HUDSON, N. Y.

Keeps constantly on hand a large stock of the latest importations adapted to the seasons.

Miss TURNER has the agency for the

Florence Sewing Machine,

The introduction of which has created a complete revolution in sewing machines.

While a large number of machines have been offered to the public, some of which possess points of excellent and acknowledged merit, the public have felt the necessity of a machine more perfect in its mechanical structure, combining in the highest degree Simplicity with Durability, and while capable of doing a greater range of work, one that could be easily understood by all ; Such a machine is the Florence. It makes four distinct stitches—Lock stitch, Knot stitch, Double Lock stitch, Double Knot stitch, thus enabling the operator to select a stitch perfectly suited to every grade of fabric. It makes the four stitches with as much facility as ordinary machines make one stitch. It is the most rapid sewer in the world, making five stitches to each revolution. It does the heaviest or finest work with equal facility, without change of tension or machinery.

 The public are invited to witness its operation.
